Making Your Will

EMG Solicitors in association with FACT are pleased to provide you with advice on any aspect of your later life planning and as a special offer for FACT supporters, we are offering 10% off our fee for making your Will.

At EMG Solicitors we create a bespoke Will for your particular circumstances. This is particularly important if there are extended families or people who have remarried or for vulnerable family members. You can also deal with other important issues through your Will like the appointment of guardians if you were to die leaving minor children. Ideally you should review your Will every 5 years or whenever there is a change in your personal circumstances for instance a birth, death, marriage or divorce.

Anyone who wants to ensure their loved ones are properly provided for after their death needs to make a Will – but it's not just about leaving a list of who will get what. If you do not make a Will the intestacy rules will apply to your estate and under these rules an unmarried partner will receive nothing, and even a spouse or civil partner will not necessarily receive everything. Apart from the inequity, this can lead to expensive claims against your estate.

Leaving a Gift in your Will

Why not also consider leaving a gift in your Will through our trusted team?

This is the simple process of making a planned donation, through designating a part of an individual's estate to a chosen charity. The donation is then made once the Will is enacted and allows the donor to create a lasting philanthropic legacy.

At EMG Solicitors, we also take the time to understand you and your circumstances and always offer clear practical advice, helping you to understand your options whilst keeping everything as simple as we can.

Our private client team is nationally recognised in the Legal 500 - the UK's leading guide to law firms and our team are happy to discuss your requirements either face to face, by video or telephone call.

Our Wills, Trusts & Probate Team, specialises in the drafting of Wills, Trusts and Powers of Attorney, as well as inheritance tax planning, mental capacity, estate and trust administration and asset protection.

'I have many conversations with cancer patients, their families, and friends where the need for more opportunities for support awareness and social interaction, in a happy friendly atmosphere, with people in similar situations has been highlighted time and time again.'

- Joanne Smith | Founder and Chief Executive

Leaving a Gift in your Will to FACT

FACT provides support and social opportunities for all cancer patients, survivors, their family and friends to meet, form friendships, and build communities with others in similar positions to themselves.

FACT provides a seamless wraparound of support mentally and physically from start to finish outside of the hospital environment for anyone affected by cancer.

Cancer is non-discriminatory, the support FACT offers the community across the North East displays our understanding of this. Anyone affected by cancer receives support from FACT, that may be a coffee and a chat, counselling, to planning and preparing for end of life, but it does not end there for their loved ones, FACT also supports the family of the bereaved.

FACT is working with adults and children to educate and raise public awareness of cancer related and healthy living issues, we deliver numerous awareness programmes in schools, colleges, workplaces, and public buildings which are specifically tailored to suit the audience.

Every day in the UK, around a thousand people are diagnosed with cancer, needing support as they and their families and friends begin their cancer journey. The challenges our beneficiaries face continue, and FACT is there to support the people of the North East.

All this is made possible through the wonderful and generous contributions of our supporters. Leaving a gift in your will to FACT means that we can continue to provide these valuable services.
